

HIGH TAXES ON SALOONS.

LIQUOR SELLING IN OHIO SUDDENLY BECOMES A CASHY BUSINESS

The Scott Law Constitutional and to be Enforced—Both Political Parties Say the Law will Help Them to Win this Fall

CINCINNATI, June 28.—The Pond bill, taxing retail traffic in liquors, was pronounced unconstitutional last year. To-day the Scott law, which was carefully drawn up to avoid the defects of the Pond bill, was declared constitutional by the Ohio Supreme Court, with only Judge Okey dissenting. The Scott Liquor Tax bill contains twelve sections, and is of com-oration shall have full power to regulate, restrain, and prohibit ale, beer, and porter houses, and places of habitual resort for tipping and intemperance. But if any such corporation shall prohibit ale, beer, or porter house within the limits of such corporation, a ratable proportion of the tax paid by the proprietors thereof for the unexpired portion of the time shall be returned to such proprietors.

[illegible]

It also prohibits the sale of intoxicating liquor to minors, or to a person intoxicated or in the habit of getting intoxicated. So it will at the house the Republicans are justly entitled to. It is not a question of Forker. The Democrats on the other hand, seem to think it will boost their chances for electing the next General Assembly in Ohio. They are, generally, indifferently satisfied with the traffic and indifferent as to whether it is openly or in favor of the law.

[illegible]

The case was brought before the Supreme Court on the grounds of the petition of its friends. The judges of the council employed by the liquor interest to represent them in the Supreme Court.

Little Miller's Burial.

A red-tailed gray rat can say: "Baby, I'm crying." "Hallelujah," cried, get up! "Seven o'clock." "Over the carter's wall," and "My wife's mother's here." is missing from the family of Boston.

B. Miller of Clarkson street and Irving place, Flatbush, that does not wear, has few bad habits, and is the best pet and comfort of Mr. Riley's invalid daughter. On the afternoon of Thursday a sex reporter read yesterday's edition of the Post and was so much interested in the reward would be given to the finder. Miss Riley said: "My Polly was too cute. She could sing 'Pars-a-bone' and 'Oh, You Little Darling,' and could even whistle 'The Bird Song.' She would sing and dance and could imitate all our voices, the barking of the dog, the chirping of the canary, and the mew of our cat."

"Yes," said Mr. Riley, "the bird could order the servants about as well as I can."

The accomplished bird was once the guest of a family in which she spent the first morning at daybreak with the family. She was the first to get up. The parrot had been seen early years ago in the city. It had been perched in the top of a high tree near Mr. Riley's house. The whole neighborhood is interested in its capture.

Erskine M. Phelps and Frank G. Hoyne, the representatives of the Froquois Club of Chicago, who came East to consult with members of the Democratic National Committee and try to have the National Democratic Convention of 1894 called to meet in Chicago, visited the Hon. Abram S. Hewitt and other Democrats here. They were warmly received and the speakers were reasonably confident of the success of their efforts.

Dropping the Responsibilities in a Heap
A burly German immigrant, followed by a woman who carried a baby, and by several little boys, walked up Centre street yesterday afternoon. He carried his household goods in a heavy bundle upon his back. Suddenly he turned and ran swiftly down the street, seeming not to feel the weight of his bundle. The woman and children burst into tears as he disappeared in the crowd. A throng of sympathizers collected, and, to one who spoke German, the woman said that her husband and children had just landed and she feared that they would be deported. She ran away. She was directed back to Castle Garden.

The Trunk Line Committee Meeting.
Wall street was convinced yesterday that there was a meeting of the joint Executive Committee of the trunk line and Western railroads to discuss the attitude of the Lackawanna road toward the pool, and its admission into the pool. As a matter of fact, the meeting yesterday was of the Executive Committee of Talk of a New Church for Dr. Tyng.

Three New Yorkers have offered to a New York friend of the Rev. Dr. Stephen H. Tyng $10,000 to erect a new church here, if he wants one. Word of Dr. Tyng's plans for the future is not yet known.

The Signal Office Prediction.
Fair weather, preceded by local rains in the morning, southerly to westerly winds, slight rise in temperature.

JOTTINGS ABOUT TOWN.

The manufacturing fur and wool hat trade of the city have agreed to close their stores from Saturday, June 30, until Thursday, July 5.

The members of the Maritime Association rejected yesterday by a vote of 74 to 223, the proposed scheme to pay a gratuity to the families of deceased members.

A fire in A. L. Hearnstein's surgical instrument manufactory at 1324 1/2 street and College avenue, Murray Nathan Perkins, 7 years old, was run over and killed by a wagon driven by James Kearney at Forty-second and Lexington avenue yesterday afternoon and instantly killed. The driver was the Forty-first street.

A man, apparently a German, who is supposed to have fallen or jumped from a Fulton ferryboat, was rescued from Pier 23, East River, yesterday, by Capt. William Metts of the tug Fountain. He was unconscious all last evening at Chambers Street hospital.

The Real Estate and Traders' Exchange was organized

The remains of Joseph M. L. Striker, who was drowned in Saratoga Lake on Monday, were brought to this city yesterday. The young widow and many friends came by the same train. There will be funeral services at 2 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. J. W. Striker, 1108 Chestnut street, at the foot of West Fifty-second street.

"In the spring, summer, and fall, when work and money are plenty," said a jolly stonemason. "I go into Washington Market and sing out, 'Send this roast up to me.'"

The Hathfield statue committee met yesterday at 171 Broadway to discuss the plan for building the pedestal. The design for the pedestal is not to be made public until the copyright has been secured by Architect HUNT. He will send the committee a list of specimens of stone for the committee to select from. They consist of limestone, sandstone, marble, and granite.

James and Frederick Bolger, 8 and 11 years old respectively, stole a coat from Christian C. Hughes of William Geisler, a truck driver of 519 Third avenue, was before Justice White, in the Yorkville Police Court yesterday, on a charge of bigamy. Elizabeth Geisler, his wife, testified she married to her in this city on March 18, 1979, by the Rev. A. B. Sanford. She asserted her, and that on July 8, 1982, he was married to Mary Lida by the Rev. A. B. Sanford. Geisler says that he obtained a divorce in the Supreme Court. He was